I'm Anshul Sharma, Head of Business Development & Certifications at Octagona India.

For over three years, I have been part of Octagona India, leading business development initiatives and managing key certification processes that enable foreign manufacturers to successfully introduce their products into the Indian market.

At Octagona India, we have supported numerous international companies in obtaining their BIS licenses — a crucial requirement for selling products in India.

On November 12th, I will be hosting an exclusive session where I will walk you through the BIS certification process, including the various schemes, procedural steps, and essential documentation involved.

Join me to gain a comprehensive understanding of how to navigate the BIS system and take confident steps toward certifying your products and unlocking opportunities in the Indian market.

Looking forward to connecting with you!
